Disorders in Oil Field Due to Oil Companies Shutting Down

MEXICAN TROOPS HERE

Washington Has Not Received Advices of Americans Being Molested

MEXICO CITY, July 8.—Several Americans are reported to have been killed or wounded in an outbreak of violence at Tampico. This was the first disorder in the Tampico district since some of the big oil companies closed down in protest against increased petroleum taxes, throwing thousands of laborers out of work.

The trouble was precipitated on Thursday night at camp Zacamixtle where a number of discharged laborers are concentrated. The men demanded three months pay which, they claimed was due them under the Mexican law and also railway fare to leave the oil fields.

Only meagre reports had been received here this morning but it was rumored that a number of men were killed and wounded, including some Americans.

Mexican troops intervened and were reported to have restored order.

Tampico was said to be greatly alarmed over the outbreak as it was feared others would follow.

Claude I. Dawson, the American consul at Tampico, sent a message to Mexico City saying that trouble had occurred, but he did not give the details.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The State Department today had no advices from Mexico City from Tampico concerning an outbreak of violence at the latter place in which several Americans were reported to have been killed.

"Lost" Munson Liner Is Reported Safe

By International News Service.
NEW YORK, July 8.—The first ray of hope penetrating the veil of gloomy mystery shrouding the whereabouts of the Munson Liner Callao, which is due here tomorrow from Buenos Aires whence she sailed at midnight June 21, came today in form of an announcement by an official of Byron and Hall, an import and export firm, that the vessel was safe and is expected to arrive before July 12.

The official said his company had received a radiogram from a passenger aboard the Callao on July 5 saying the vessel was then at San Juan and that trouble had developed in the machinery. He added that the message gave rise to the belief the liners wireless apparatus was out of commission.

Krassin Sends Denial

LONDON, July 8.—Leonid Krassin, head of the Russian trade delegation, today addressed a note to Marquis Curzon, British foreign secretary, denying that any members of the Russian trade mission at Constantinople were involved in the alleged plot for a revolution.

M. Krassin complained that the charge against the Russians in Constantinople were made lightly "without a particle of evidence," and asked for an explanation.

Townfolk Sweltering Under Wave O'erspreading Country

Whew!
Isn't it hot!

That is the greeting one gets these days as he strolls about town in search of news. No one is moving about except the fellow who like the reporter is by force of circumstances, forced to stick to the job and get out a paper regardless of how high the old Mercury climbs or how sticky the humid atmosphere.

Last night was an unusual one in Bristol. Most of the residents here sought the cooling waters of the Delaware, the canal and nearby creeks. They splashed about until nearly midnight. Babies toddled round on porches and sidewalks dressed in negligee, but nevertheless suffered considerably by the heat.

Policeman doffed their heavy blue coats whenever an opportunity afforded, defying the silly conventionalities of the present day.

Three rather unseasonable incidents occurred this morning in Bristol. A colored man wearing a long, heavy overcoat stood in front of Townsend's restaurant, waiting to board an automobile bound for Tullytown Arsenal

NEW YORK, July 8.—In response to an inquiry as to the real state of affairs at Tampico, President Obregon sent the following telegram to the International News Service today.

"There is nothing abnormal in the Tampico situation with the exception that some of the oil companies have suspended operations while others are working more intensively."

Peggy Joyce Gets Big Alimony Award

Stage Beauty Given About One-tenth of What She Asked

SUM IS TEMPORARY

CHICAGO, July 8.—Pretty Peggy Hopkins Joyce, one time "Follies" chorus girl and defendant in what has been styled "the most expensive divorce suit in history," failed today in her attempt to obtain from J. Stanley Joyce, her multi-millionaire husband, the $120,000 a year alimony that she had asked. Instead she was granted, in a decision handed down by Joseph Sabath in Superior Court, a sum just a little more than one tenth of that amount.

Judge Sabath ruled that, pending the outcome of the divorce suit which Joyce has brought against Peggy, the former chorus girl shall receive $1,350 a month as temporary alimony; $27,500 in solicitors fees and 12,500 as expenses of her suit. Peggy had asked $10,000 a month alimony and $100,000 for attorneys fees and expenses.

In support of her demand for huge sums from Joyce, Peggy had asserted that her affluent husband had taken her away from a stage position paying her $700 per week and had taught her to live in a manner that required thousands monthly to maintain.

Turkish Nationalists Demand Greeks Evacuate Smyrna

By International News Service.
LONDON, July 8.—The Turkish Nationalist government at Ankara has officially demanded the evacuation of Smyrna by the Greeks, thus making it improbable that there will be any conference between General Harrington and Mustafa Kemal Pasha, leader of the Turkish Nationalists, said a Central News dispatch from Constantinople today.

Announcement was made in the British House of Commons that General Harrington was empowered to transmit any peace proposals from the Turkish Nationalists to the Allies, but was not authorized to enter into peace negotiations.

State Claims That Wife Tried To Kill Kaber

More Evidence Introduced at Trial of "Stone Woman" Today

SPRINKLED ARSENIC

Maid Says Mrs. Kaber Poisoned Food Husband Was to Eat

BY MILDRED MORRIS
Staff Correspondent I. N. S.
COURT HOUSE, CLEVELAND, O., July 8.—More evidence to show that Mrs. Catherine Eva Kaber attempted to poison her husband, Daniel Kaber before she hired assassins to kill him was introduced by the state today.

Miss Emma Wagner, a housemaid employed in the Kabers home for three months before Kaber was fatally stabbed, gave testimony supporting charges of the state that Mrs. Kaber had sprinkled arsenic over the food fed the slain man as he lay in bed, helpless, an invalid.

"Usually after Mr. Kaber ate and sometimes during his meals, particularly while eating desserts, he took down sick," said the maid. "He'd vomit and get convulsions."

"Once I took a tray of food up stairs to him, Mrs. Kaber met me in the hall and took it from me. She said she'd give Mr. Kabers dinner."

"After I went down stairs I heard Mr. Kabers moan."

"I went up stairs to his room. Mrs. Kabers was feeding him strawberries and he was vomiting."

"The strawberries had powdered sugar on them. They didn't have when I brought them up."

"Who put the powdered sugar on the berries?" asked Assistant County Prosecutor James T. Cassidy.

"I don't know. I washed the berries and put them on the tray. What happened to them after Mrs. Kabers took the tray I don't know," the maid replied.

Johnson was found unconscious in his berth yesterday. Poison, it is said, caused his death. Johnson was given work on the ship Wednesday.

Home Town Business

The old idea of a town was that it was a group of people gathered in one location to obtain certain conveniences, but who were isolated in their business relations. They never seemed to feel they had close business interests in common. It was everyone for himself, and the devil take the hindmost. As a consequence the devil usually took them all.

The modern idea is that a town is a community of people whose business and civic relations are inextricably interwoven. They are not competing rivals grabbing for the biggest shares of a certain limited business. They are partners in a joint effort to render the most efficient service to the state and country. Their success depends on all elements working harmoniously together to produce a maximum result.

The first result of this conception, should be the realization that people do well to support all the enterprises of their home town. If they give a large part of their business patronage to dealers living somewhere else, they defeat the ends for which they are working, and place prohibitive limits on the growth of the community.

That means, stated in the simplest way, that anyone here in Bristol who wants his home town to grow, must do his part in the first step toward such growth by buying his home and business supplies so far as possible of the dealers in his home town. This subject is not a new one, but it is one that should be emphasized constantly. To bring it again before our people, the Courier has had prepared a series of editorials soon to be printed which will show to positive advantage that come from a policy of loyal support of home town enterprises.

The first of the series will appear tomorrow on the editorial page.

Game Embargo Is Made Over Local Gunners' Protest

Plea of Upper Countians Was Granted, Though Bristol Petition Was Largest

CLOSED FOR TWO YEARS

Resident Sportsmen Consider It Unfair, When They Paid For Stocking

Despite the fact that the remonstrance filed by the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association with the Board of Game Commissioners at Harrisburg, protesting against the closing of Bucks County to the shooting of deer, wild turkey, rough-necked grouse, Hungarian partridges, quail and ring-neck pheasants, had nearly twice as many signers as the petition filed by the Bucks County Fish, Game & Forestry Association praying that the county be closed, the Game Commissioner yesterday closed the county. Bucks County is to be closed for a period of two years to the shooting of the game mentioned above.

The Courier today interviewed the Game Commissioners at Harrisburg and confirmed the news of that decision, which is of the utmost interest to local sportsmen and has been awaited with keen anxiety.

When asked for an explanation of why the local petitioners had not been granted their plea, an official of the Game Commission said, notwithstanding the fact that it was brought to his attention that the Bristol petition contained more names than the County one said:

"We discussed the matter at some length and concluded that there was more sentiment in favor of closing the county than there was in favor of keeping it open."

"Then, too, we have on several occasions granted the request of the lower end of the county, so we decided to this year grant that of the citizens in the upper end. No charges of favoritism can therefore be made by any section of the county."

"The date of closing will begin with the opening of the season for the various animals and birds mentioned in the petition."

The official went on to say that gunners in the lower end would still have the right to shoot rabbits, squirrels, blackbirds, reed birds and water fowls.

The Bristol remonstrance was signed by 1187 individuals and appended were personal letters supporting the remonstrance, written by W. S. Gedney, P. R. R. local representative; T. F. Donnelly, superintendent of Delaware Division of Lehigh Canal; John S. Roberts, Borough Engineer; Clifford L. Anderson, Chief Burgess; Howard I. James, Borough Solicitor and others.

The closing of the county comes as a great disappointment to sportsmen in this section. They say that it is unfair to them that the shooting of the game on which they have spent their money for stocking this section should be prohibited.

It is said that the majority of the members of the Doylestown Association are fishermen, and that those who are gunners do their shooting in the South. Many farmers are enrolled and they object to gunning being done over their premises.

On the other hand, those enrolled in the Bristol organization are mostly gunners, who like to shoot over Bucks County land. They spend their money for game to stock this section and then the up-county sportsmen have it closed.

Fishermen in this section are reporting poor luck. They blame the excessive heat, which they claim is making the water so hot that the fish won't bite.

Hens Cackle, Cows Moo As Cop Faces Barnyard Court

Livestock Looks On Sympathetically When Tullytown Justice Holds Bristol Officer On Assault Charge

Time—Yesterday afternoon at four o'clock.

Place—Barnyard of Joshua H. Cooper, Tullytown.

Comedy drama—"Court scene in a barnyard."

The trial of Policeman Kessinger charged with assault and battery by Mike Puchino was staged in the office of Justice of Peace, Joshua H. Cooper, Tullytown, yesterday afternoon.

The justice has his official location in one end of a barn. It is a low structure and one can stand and touch the ceiling of the room. Most of the windows are of the kind that swing open and they had been nailed shut during the bleak cold days of last winter and never released.

It is a square room about 20 by 20 with one door. The side walls are decorated with sets of harness, gaudy advertising posters such as those vaunting Goodrich tires, Schenck's Mandrake Pills and the like. A large oil lamp is suspended above the justice's desk and the only really modern thing about the place is a telephone, which is a party line and a regular fountain of neighborhood gossip. As one lifts the receiver, he can hear the neighbors chatting about crops and family affairs.

There is a long wooden settee, the kind that used to be popular on front porches. Then there is a box or two and a rocking chair with a carpet seat, which sags almost to the floor.

Around the sides of the room yesterday afternoon were grouped some seventy Italians. They had come from Bristol to the trial, to hear how their friend Puchino made out. When this crowd had succeeded in getting stacked into the miniature court room and the trial had been officially opened by Constable Dunk crying, "Let's have a little order here," one can imagine that the atmosphere was not all pure oxygen, or of the sort which gives one that bracing feeling and which invigorates.

The justice took his seat behind the desk. On one side sat Attorney Franklin Gilkeson, representing the defendant, and opposite sat Hugh Rogers, a Philadelphia attorney, representing Puchino.

Puchino took the stand and told his story, which was to the effect that Policeman Kessinger made an unprovoked attack on him on the evening of July 4th. Kessinger, he testified, hit him on the head with his club and knocked him senseless. He recovered in the Harriman hospital. He testified that the officer came up

Excursion Steamer Crashes Into Fishing Schooner

By International News Service.
BOSTON, July 8.—One man was badly injured and 5 other were thrown into the waters of the lower harbor to day when the Nantasket excursion boat Old Colony collided with the fish schooner, Active of Provincetown, Cape Cod, sinking the schooner.

The crash occurred in a dense fog. Both boats were moving slowly and bells and whistles were being sounded at intervals.

The Active had 8,000 pounds of cod aboard and was manned by a crew of six men. One of the crew was caught by the stem of the steamer and hurled across the schooner's deck. The other members of the crew were picked up by boats from the Old Colony and from the shore. Several hundred passengers witnessed the crash, but there was no indication of panic.

District Attorney At Booze Hearing

Appears as Prosecutor When Alleged Liquor Sellers Are Arraigned

PRISONERS ALL DENY

Seven of the eight men arrested on warrants in which they are charged by the police with illegally selling liquor are scheduled for a further hearing this afternoon before Justice Kraft.

They are to be prosecuted by Hiram Keller, District Attorney of Bucks County.

The police claim that they have sufficient evidence against all of the men accused and that they expect to secure conviction in all of the cases.

It is a subject of common knowledge that intoxicating liquor has been flowing quite freely though illicitly in the borough. Almost daily staggering men are seen on the streets, but, when the police trace them to the place they came from no signs of liquor dispelling can be found. The upper section of the borough seems to be the center of attraction and during the early hours of the morning men drunk and using loud and boisterous language are often seen along the streets.

The men placed under arrest all of course, claim that they are innocent. Some of them deny that they have ever sold any drinks that was in the least intoxicating or ever had it in their places of business.

Some of those in the clutches of law have been subjects of some criticism from those residing in their neighborhoods. They seem to have been prejudged as proprietors of speakeasies because of the character of the frequenters of their places.

The hearing this afternoon is expected to attract a large number of witnesses and several hours will doubtless be consumed in listening to the evidence.

Manufacturers Optimistic Despite Summer Slump

By H. K. REYNOLDS
Staff Correspondent I. N. S.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Manufacturers of the United States, in the face of the protracted industrial depression and the mounting tide of unemployment, are optimistic, and while they recognize the probability of a dull summer in most lines, there is a tendency to expect improvement by fall and a healthy business revival in the spring of 1922, according to reports from sixty five industrial centers compiled and made public today by the Department of Labor.

The reports indicate that the usual summer business slump has offset some of the improvement which was evident in May, and that retail sales show that the public is still waiting for lower prices.

Discharges of employees because of lack of work during the month of June were reported by all firms except those engaged in the manufacture of food products, textiles, leather, liquors, clay products and tobacco.

Make Budget Fit School Needs On Less State Aid

Finance Committee of Board Cuts Garment to Suit The Cloth

PER CAPITA TAX IS SAME

Change From Method of Assessing Occupation Will Not Increase it

The school budget for the year 1921 and 1922 is of more than usual interest owing to the enacting of the new school law which has saddled the Bristol Board of Education with considerable more expense than was at first anticipated.

The finance committee of the Board has for several days been preparing this budget and today made it known in detail.

A glance at the budget shows that the assessed valuation of real estate alone in the borough amounts to $3,258,850. The teachers' salaries will amount to $50,000 next year, and to meet this expense a tax of 11 mills on the assessed valuation must be set aside, which together with the $14,192.50 the state agrees to pay will be sufficient to cover this expense.

According to the books of the assessors, there are 4,866 men and women who have been assessed for taxes, each of whom must pay a per capita tax of $3.00 for school purposes. Heretofore, this has been called an occupation tax, each occupation being valued at $200. The tax rate set by the school board for next year is $1.50 per $100 of assessed valuation, so that the per capita tax of $3.00 is the same as it would have been under the old method of assessing the occupation.

Next year the teaching force in the school will consist of 40 teachers and a superintendent.

One mill of the tax rate is set aside for building purposes. This amount, or to be exact $2,500 a year, is paying off the bonded debt of $38,000 which represents the cost of the erection and furnishing of the Jefferson avenue school building. From this it can be seen that the system of allowing a period of 30 years in which to pay off a bond issue which is used for the erection of a new school building, makes the proposition involving the erection of a new building a comparatively easy one.

A glance at the various items which comprise the budget shows that the school affairs are conducted in a most economical manner. Many of the items are fixed expenses and many of the others are placed at such a low figure, that it is hard to believe that the amounts appropriated will be sufficient.

The budget in full is as follows:

BUDGET FOR YEAR 1921-1922
RECEIPTS
School Taxes,	$60,000.00
Appropriation due from State,	10,368.50
New Appropriation on 35% basis,	14,192.50
Syracuse Lighting Co., Bonds,	200.00
Altoona and Logan Valley, Bonds,	22.50
Non-resident tuition,	1,300.00
	86,083.50
EXPENDITURES
Supt. and Teachers Salaries,	$50,000.00
Janitors,	4,420.75
State School Employees Re Board,	1,200.00
Attendance Officer,	200.00
Secretary Salary,	200.00

Manufacturers Optimistic Despite Summer Slump

During the month 1,428 establishments reported the discharge of 46,414 workmen, a pay roll decrease of 2.9 per cent. The next decrease in these same concerns since January 31 has been 101,010, or 6.2 per cent, according to the department's figures.

The fundamental causes of the present business depression, of which unemployment is one of the most alarming phases, are cited by the United States Employment Service of the department of Labor as follows:

- 1—Unsatisfactory conditions of transportation with freight rates in many cases almost prohibitive.
- 2—Lack of a normal foreign market.
- 3—Present low value of farm products.
- 4—Stagnation in iron and steel.
- 5—High costs of construction.
- 6—General dullness of the retail trade.

Early wheat harvest in the grain states of the Middle West has relieved unemployment somewhat but manufacturing, it is reported, has decreased in the mining states.

OUR PHILANTHROPY A MODEL

The visit of a delegation of prominent Morrisville women to the Bristol Baby Clinic, for the purpose of securing ideas for use in organizing a similar philanthropic enterprise in their section of Bucks County is a very great compliment to those who organized and are conducting the local clinic. The commendation given the Bristol clinic and its work as witnessed by them, and their statement that they intend modeling their baby clinic after ours is added cause for appreciation of the local endeavor.

The Morrisville ladies also intend requesting help from the doctors and nurses who are devoting themselves to the Bristol clinic in organizing the Morrisville clinic.

The attendance at the weekly clinics has long since proven that they are doing good work in a philanthropic and public health respect and this visit and commendation of the women from a neighboring community proves that the Bristol clinic is being conducted on efficient lines. The visitors saw the work being done in a manner they deemed worthy of imitating.

The field in Morrisville for the inculcation of the better care of babies is no doubt as fertile as it is in Bristol, for Morrisville has a large industrial population, an overflow from the adjoining city of Trenton.

The methods in vogue in Bristol will enable the Morrisville women who are about to organize the effort in their town to proceed intelligently and smoothly to put their clinic in operation.

READY-MADE CLOTHING

Twenty years ago men's ready-made clothing was not considered good form. Such clothes were commonly supposed to wear poorly and fit badly, and to be discreditable to an ambitious man. Then there gradually developed a group of producers who began to establish higher standards.

They began to educate the public up to the idea that a fine type of ready-made clothing could be produced. They described their methods of manufacture, dwelt on their improvements, emphasized wearing qualities of their goods.

The effect was to persuade a lot of people to try ready-made clothing and the consumption of this line of goods was tremendously increased. A multitude of men who are very careful in their personal appearance were induced to use ready-made goods.

The increased demand for this merchandise permitted the goods to be made on a large scale where the benefits of quantity production could be secured. When you consider what excellent suits of clothes can be bought today for $35.00 to $50.00, in spite of the fact that the cost of labor and materials has more than doubled, it is evident that this line of business has given the public splendid service. Advertising has concentrated the trade in the hands of competent people, and standardized it so that it is done in the most efficient manner. The prejudice against ready-made clothing has disappeared. The people who made poor-wearing and ill-fitting stuff have been largely driven out by producers who have turned out dependable merchandise.

This development could not have happened if advertising had not been very freely used, to educate the public up to the new idea. And so it is constantly happening in every line; that advertising is showing the people how they can get their goods by the most economical methods.

People who fail to study carefully the advertising in the Courier are not doing what they might to keep themselves up with the times.

CIVIC ORGANIZATION WORK

In running a business men's organization or civic progress society, one of the chief problems is how to win the attention and secure the co-operation of the most forceful personalities of the community. "The Nation's Business" magazine, describing the work of a commercial organization secretary, remarks that "much of his time is spent in talking with drifters into the office, which is the recognized place for such citizens as have little to do and much to say."

Such persons have time on their hands, and are full of suggestions of things that ought to be done. Many of their suggestions are good. But to get things done, it takes a different type of people. You could not persuade these talkers to serve on a committee that had to go around from home to home and get the public to wake up and join in with some movement.

The real business leaders often get disgusted with civic movements because there is so much talk and so little action. They have no time to waste on discussions that do not result in actual accomplishment.

There ought to be in any community a few of the business and social leaders who would be willing to give time to public work. Many business men help out such movements a lot by letting their office help do some of the clerical tasks thereof. But for the actual work of arousing the public and soliciting co-operation, it is commonly necessary to depend on your hustlers who have their reputation to make. Elderly people who have never done anything but talk have proved a dead weight on many civic efforts.

HORSES IN HOT WEATHER

Human beings find many methods of escaping the worst of the suffering caused by hot weather, but the dumb animals that serve man do not always find corresponding means of relief.

If a man becomes exhausted on a hot day, he can go into a shady place and recuperate. Most employers of labor are merciful enough so that they do not push their workpeople as hard on a hot day as they do in cooler weather. But a toiling horse commonly has to drag just as heavy loads with the thermometer at 90 as if it were at 60. If he shows signs of fatigue, many drivers hit him a good cut with the whip, until he staggers on, almost stumbling from weariness.

It does not always indicate a hard heart to treat a patient animal this way, because in the majority of cases it is done in heedlessness. But if people had a little more sympathy for their dumb animals they would not see these patient workers give out at an early age as so often they do.

OBSERVATIONS

Some of these people who step on the gas in crowded streets should be invited to step into the jail.

The I. W. W.ites are reported not distributing much literature this year. Perhaps they discovered that the above activity is work.

Many men who always were too busy to help in the kitchen work, have found it necessary to spend much time therein since the home brew business began.

The Stroller

HUMAN INTEREST ITEMS
 GATHERED ABOUT TOWN
 AND ITS PEOPLE

Some bathers, canoeists and campers along the Delaware shore adjacent to Bristol are not likely to join in any complaint that is made against the Trenton Transportation Company's passenger steamers going by the town at high full speed and throwing up a heavy wash in their wake. Any abatement of the wash would spoil the sport of these river habitués.

They find great sport in the rollers which rush toward the shore like ocean billows, when the boats pass by. Some of the bathers, mostly boys and daring girls who can swim like ducks, attired in their bathing suits and seated in their canoes, await the coming of the steamers. When the steamer has hove in sight they put out from the shore and with shoulders bent to paddles head for the steamer's wake.

The rollers come racing toward them and skillfully handling their eggshell craft, they point its nose directly into the waves. Shouts of glee usually come from the daring navigators as they mount the billows and sink into the depths of the wash, then rise, mount and fall again into the succeeding rollers.

It is a sport similar to that very popular at the seashore resorts, by canoeists who put into the surf and race back on the rollers.

A Story of the Builders of Democracy

"We'll see," said Samson. They saw and without much delay the background of his pretensions, for one day within the week he and Blm rode away and did not return. Soon a letter came from Blm to her mother, mailed at Beardstown. It told of their marriage in that place and said that they would be starting for St. Louis in a few hours on the Star of the North. She begged the forgiveness of her parents and declared that she was very happy.

"Too bad! Isn't it?" said Sarah when Mrs. Waddell, who had come out with her husband one evening to bring this news, had finished the story.

"Yes, it kind of spyles the place," said Samson. "I'm afraid for Jack Kelso—fraid it'll bust his fiddle if it don't break his heart. His wife is alone now. We must ask her to come and stay with us."

"The Allens have taken her in," said Mrs. Waddell.

"That's good," said Sarah. "I'll go down there tomorrow and offer to do anything we can."

When Mr. and Mrs. Waddell had gone Sarah said: "I can't help thinking of poor Harry. He was terribly in love with her."

"Well, he'll have to get over it—that's all," said Samson. "He's young and the wound will heal."

It was well for Harry that he was out of the way of all this, and entered upon adventures which absorbed his thought. As to what was passing with him we have conclusive evidence in two letters, one from Col. Zachary Taylor, in which he says:

"Harry Needles is also recommended for the most outrepld conduct as a scout and for securing information of great value. Compelled to abandon his wounded horse he swam a river under fire and under the observation of three of our officers, through whose help he got back to his command, bringing a bullet in his thigh."

With no knowledge of military service and a company of untrained men, Abe had no chance to win laurels in the campaign. His command did not get in touch with the enemy. He had his hands full maintaining a decent regard for discipline among the raw frontiersmen of his company.

When the disheartened volunteers were mustered out late in May, Kelso and McNeill, being sick with a stubborn fever, were declared unfit for service and sent back to New Salem as soon as they were able to ride. Abe and Harry joined Captain Elie's company of Independent Rangers and a month or so later Abe re-enlisted to serve with Captain Early. Harry being under a surgeon's care. The latter's wound was not serious and on July third he too joined Early's command.

This company was chiefly occupied in the moving of supplies and the burying of a few men who had been killed in small engagements with the enemy. It was a band of rough-looking fellows in the costume of the frontier farm and workshop—ragged, dirty and unshorn. The company was disbanded July tenth at Whitewater, Wisconsin, where, that night, the horses of Harry and Abe were stolen. From that point they started on their long homeward tramp with a wounded sense of decency and justice. They felt that the Indians had been wronged, that the greed of land grabbers had brutally violated their rights. This feeling had been deepened by the massacre of the red women and children at Bad Ax.

A number of mounted men went with them and gave them a ride now and then. Some of the travelers had little to eat on the journey. Both Abe and Harry suffered from hunger and sore feet before they reached Peoria, where they bought a canoe and in the morning of a bright day started down the Illinois river.

They had a long day of comfort in its current with a good store of bread and butter and cold meat and pie. The prospect of being fifty miles nearer home before nightfall lightened their hearts and they laughed freely while Abe told of his adventures in the campaign. To him it was all a wild comedy with tragic scenes dragged into it and woefully out of place. Indeed he thought it no more like war than a pig steking and that was the kind of thing he hated.

Harry had not heard from home since he left it. Abe had had a letter from Rutledge which gave him the news of Blm's elopement. The letter said:

"I was over to Beardstown the day Kelso and McNeill got off the steamer. I brought them home with me. Kelso was bigger than his trouble. Said that the ways of youth were a part of the great plan. 'Thorns! Thorns!' he said. 'They are the teachers of wisdom and who am I that I should think myself or my daughter too good for the like, since it is written that Jesus Christ did not complain of them?'"

"Have you heard from home?" Abe asked as they paddled on.

"Not a word," said Harry.

"You're not expecting to meet Blm Kelso?"

"That's the best part of getting home for me," said Harry, turning with a smile.

Mine Rescue Art To Be Demonstrated

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 8.—Carefully planned mine disasters will be staged here early in September under Federal supervision. Workers will be rescued from burning shafts, following their entombment in corridors of suffocating gas or smoke-filled mine galleries.

From such enactment the members of the International First Aid and Mine Rescue Association will be taught how to save human lives. The United States Bureau of Mines will have charge of the exhibition, and an especially constructed "mine" will hold forth in the Coliseum here.

Every important mining center in the United States will have delegates present at the meeting, according to information received from the Bureau of Mines at Washington.

IF YOU ARE TAKING YEAST

You'll Be Glad To Know Yeast Vitamine Is Put Up in Tablets Now

EASIER TO TAKE: RESULTS QUICKER

Out of experience gained in watching numerous people taking yeast the chemists have found the "Ideal" combination and now you can buy at the drug store—concentrated tablets containing a proper dose of Yeast Vitamine (Water Soluble B) from yeast with the still more important "Fat Soluble A" Vitamine, etc., which in tablet form, made expressly for medicinal use, is easier to take, more economical and results quicker. These tablets are called "Phos-Pho Vitamine" tablets. Doctors, druggists and chemists prefer them and praise this newer, better way.

If your druggist hasn't secured the tablets yet, send $1. plus 4c in war tax, to Irving Laboratory, Wheeling, W. Va., for a bottle of 60 Phos-Pho Vitamine Tablets prepaid.—Advertisement.

from behind him and told him to move, which he started to do. When asked if he was intoxicated, he said that he had had three drinks of wine, but knew what he was doing and was not singing or staggering.

He was accompanied by Frank Brush, 225 Franklin street. Brush was put on the stand, and in a most dramatic way, gave physical demonstration of how the officer approached Puchino and—bang! cracked him on the head.

At this point, Justice Cooper, warmed up by the dramatic testimony of the witness, shed his collar. The witnesses mopped their foreheads and Constable Dunk ripped off some boards which had replaced the broken glass in the windows.

Dr. Horace Webb, of Bristol, took the stand. Dr. Webb treated Puchino at the hospital. "Oh! My God I'm drunk," Puchino told the doctor when he treated his wounds.

"Did you smell liquor on him?" "I did," replied Dr. Webb. "Was he drunk?" "He appeared to be intoxicated." "Was he unconscious?" "Not so that he couldn't say, 'Oh! My God I'm drunk!'"

The next witness was Marco Manze, 513 Jefferson avenue. Manze does not speak good English and Tony Russo was sworn as an interpreter.

Here the temperature climbed so high that it hit the ceiling and rebounded with an intense heat on the occupants of the court room.

"Let's go out under the willow trees," suggested someone. The suggestion was echoed by all. Justice Cooper adjourned court and it was recovered under the willow trees in the barn yard.

The judge placed his Bible and note pad on the top of a little chicken coop. He carried a chair from his office as did each of the attorneys and one for the witnesses. Some of the crowd mounted the wood piles, as vantage points from which to view the proceedings, while others climbed the trees, sat on the barn roof and stood on any elevated point near at hand.

This was the scene of the balance of the testimony and the taking of the evidence was done to the cackling of the chicks, the roar of the trains as they rushed by, punctuated now and then with the moo of a cow, calmly grazing in a nearby pasture.

Mary Farrera, 511 Jefferson avenue; Sam Lasparello, 1038 Trenton avenue; Tony Romeo, 513 Jefferson avenue; Grace Ward, 449 Jefferson avenue; Giovanna Lashardo, 513 Jefferson avenue; were other witnesses all of whom tended to corroborate the testimony of Puchino and Brush.

Attorney Rogers said that he had 13 witnesses, but as they practically all had the same testimony to offer, he did not place them on the stand.

Policeman Kessinger testified that he stood at Elm street and Jefferson avenue, at 8.25 on the night of July 4th. Puchino came down the avenue staggering and cussing. He stopped and was ordered to move on, according to the officer. Puchino refused, said Kessinger and replied, "I don't have to." I took him by the arm and told him he was under arrest and he threw up his arm as if to pole me. Then I hit him."

The policeman recited how he went to the store of John Shire across the street, to telephone into headquarters for the chief and a car to take the man to a hospital. Shire did not have a phone and when Kessinger returned Puchino's friends had taken him to the hospital.

Kessinger in the meantime had asked Edward Bonner to take charge of the man until he could telephone.

Bonner, the only American except one to appear as a witness, corroborated Kessinger's testimony.

Attorney Rogers summed up for the prosecutor and Attorney Gilkeson for the defense. The justice mediated a few moments and then admitted Kessinger to $200 bail for court.

THEATRES

Forrest Theatre

J. Warren Kerrigan's latest Brunton production, "The Coast of Opportunity," adapted from the well known novel by Page Phillips, has been released through W. W. Hodgkinson and will be given its premiere showing in Bristol tonight at the Forrest Theatre. "The Coast of Opportunity" is one of the most entertaining plays this popular star has produced in many months and is well adapted to his dashing, romantic type. He plays the role of a venturesome young mining engineer who drifts into a lonesome desert region of Old Mexico in search of his fortune in copper. Finding a rich deposit he starts building a railroad to transport the ore. A rival mine operator endeavors to prevent the laying of the road and throws a myriad of obstacles in the newcomers' path. With the aid of a resourceful young girl the engineer finally outguesses his competitor and the road is put through.

New Colonial Theatre

Cliff Smith, producer of "Western Hearts" the feature attraction at the New Colonial Theatre Saturday sent Josie Sedgwick, Art Stator and his company far into the hills for exteriors. In one of the big scenes, the script called for smoke to come from a hole that led to an underground passage.

Everything was set and the property boys made the fire roar as directed. Stator and his company were lowering one another into the smoke filled opening and Miss Sedgwick waited their appearance at the bottom of the cave.

"Camera" called Mr. Smith. No sooner had the cranks been started when six men with their Winchester drawn made their appearance. The leader of the gang soon made known his request, "We've been on your trail a long long time," he said, "and now we know where all of this moonshine is coming from." Explanations would not go and it was intended to allow the six men to descend into the cave and allow Miss Sedgwick to prove to them that if there was any moonshine in the country, the company did not know of it. The revenue men remained as Mr. Smith's guests for two days.

Motoring is a game in which two parties play—you and the other fellow. You never know what move the other fellow will make.

A good move for you is to get automobile insurance. It covers liability, collision and property damage. This agency writes it.
